Public Trust

From 1 April 2015, Public Trust has committed to become a RSA member partner. This means the two organisations will officially be working more closely together, on growing a sustainable, long term relationship, designed to help and protect New Zealand families. The RSA and Public Trust are trusted brands and household names in New Zealand, and both have been around for more than a century. Both organisations have been carefully built on similar values such as trust, integrity, honesty and expertise, and have a clear focus on the future.
